CITY WATER PROBLEM

For years the city water problem has bobbed up, from time to time, to worry city administrations and to befuddle the public. Not always has it been source of supply nor adequate storage facilities and yet, looking into the future, these two problems ever seem to confront the service department.

One experiment after another has been tried during these years. Some experimenting has continued up to the present, although in the last year extensive improvements, somewhat costly but practical, have been introduced by Service Director Kennedy. Now the time for substituting a broad and intensive study into water conditions, in place of hit and miss experiments, has arrived. Director Kennedy is the first to sense that necessity; hence his plea to city council Tuesday night to give the water supply problem immediate and serious consideration. His suggestion that council call in an outside expert to check on his deductions is fair and sensible.

Few people in Salem have realized how the demand on the city water supply has increased in most recent years and how much more water will be needed for industrial expansion in sight for Salem. Regardless of what program finally is adopted, it will take time to work it out. It is imperative, therefore, that there be little delay in beginning a thorough study of the entire situation.

Iron oxide in the water—and apparently plenty of mud—also has brought daily complaints from housewives since the situation became acute some three weeks ago. Official attention suddenly became responsive when the complaints assumed much greater proportions with the damage done by the oxide at one of Salem's most important manufacturing plants. This condition of the water immediately assumed the stage of a crisis and it seems likely now, through prompt official action, that at least a temporary remedy is in sight.

It must be apparent to all now that wisdom was shown some two or three years ago when city council halted attempts to use up reserve waterworks funds to install a city water softener. The water crisis that faces the city today undoubtedly will require some large expenditures in the near future if an adequate supply of clear water is to be provided for protection of city property and to assure industrial expansion. Whatever the cost, the solution should be sought with all possible speed.

MORE WATCHDOGS NEEDED

In City Auditor Karl L. Webster, Salem has had a watchdog of the city funds. For several years he has been whittling away at the bonded indebtedness until it has been reduced by two-thirds. Constantly, also, he has warned city officials against spending money the city did not have. Not always have they cooperated with him in this respect and as the city's auditor he could go only so far in cautioning against making purchases without first ascertaining whether funds were available to pay the price.

What the city needs today is a whole kennel of watchdogs to aid the auditor. He has a stack of unpaid bills contracted by city officials and no money, at least for the present, with which to pay them. There must be curtailment, for the city's operating income in 1941 seems certain to be curtailed—how much is still uncertain.

A. P. Morris, chairman of council's finance committee, gave the first official "go slow" warning to city council Tuesday night. He recognizes the gravity of the situation perhaps better than most other city officials except the auditor, and he senses the need for immediate retrenchment.

Already in the doubtful state is the issuance of bonds for a new fire truck. The board of control can make no further move toward the letting of the $13,450 contract it approved some time ago until bonds are issued, as such a contract is not valid until the auditor can certify that the money is in fund. The city may not be able to issue that many bonds. Even if, by straining a point, it finds it can, it should not.

With a complete change in the city's financial picture, that much money would strain the municipal pocketbook. If the city administration wants to start the new year off in the right direction—that is, in the direction of economy—it could make no wiser move than to re-advertise for bids for a less expensive fire truck. And a smaller truck would amply serve the city's needs for several years.

Along with this move the administration might join the watchdog kennel itself by not contracting bills until it was certain funds for their payment had been appropriated. And council might refuse to appropriate for purchases made before authority were given for the payment. All city officials are facing a year in which economy must be practiced. They might as well begin now by keeping an eye on every expenditure.

IN GOD WE TRUST

There used to be a time when anyone with an ordinary grasp of arithmetic could take the national budget, purse his lips over the figures and pretend to understand how income and outgo were going to be matched up to make everything come out all right in the end.

Those days are gone, probably forever. No one but a liar or a politician even pretends to be able to encompass the enormity of the budget figures that have come into style. Even the accountants who juggle them habitually leave off the last half dozen ciphers to save time.

In short, the idea of understanding public income and outgo in order to keep track of government finance, which was the reason for adopting the budget system in 1921, has been blown sky-high. The United States is having about as much luck explaining the budget as a lawyer explaining an insurance policy to a weeping widow. Some things in this world—like drinking water, have to be taken on faith, and the budget now is one of them.

The budget for the next fiscal year, explained to congress by President Roosevelt on Wednesday, reflects national determination to let nothing stand in the way of preparedness. Hang the expense, says Mr. Roosevelt in effect, a reminder that he formerly advised congress to hang the expense when appropriating money for the fight against depression. Of all recent chief executives, Mr. Roosevelt is most firmly committed to the proposition that free spending will turn the trick, which possibly explains why his budget messages leave taxpayers gasping.

As for the figures used to make the new budget cogent, they line up as follows, with the ciphers left off:

For the 12 months starting next July 1, income will be to outgo as 82 is to 174, which means that for every dollar taken in $2.13 will go out. Stated another way, it means that every time the government pays out 82 in cash, it will pay out 92 as an IOU. Not only will it spend all its income, represented by 82, but 92 besides, for a total of 174. Furthermore, this may be only the beginning of its spending, because no one knows how much will be spent in behalf of Great Britain and other needy nations. It probably will be enough, though, to make the ratio of income to outgo something like 82 to 222.

Effect of defense spending is represented by the figure 52, which is the number of pennies out of each dollar that will go to buy armament and all other items of preparedness for war. It is the chief reason for the lopsidedness of the budget; ordinary administrative expenses are going to be held down, and relief spending will be curtailed, though it is officially recognized that many relief beneficiaries never will be separated from the federal payroll again. By way of furnishing a round figure to impress warmakers, Mr. Roosevelt has supplied $28,000,000,000 as the amount of money the United States will spend on war preparations alone during a three-year period starting June 30, 1940.

Interesting as these ponderous sums and potent ratios are, they represent nothing but guesses. That's all a budget ever is. The official guess on income usually is too optimistic, of course, and so is the guess on outgo. One year Mr. Roosevelt missed the deficit by 422 percent, which is about as wrong as it's possible to be. Perhaps it's just as well that only a few dauntless citizens ever try to make sense out of the budget, which no longer bears any relationship to ordinary family finances. If the full import of what depressions, wars and centralized political authority are doing to taxpayers ever happened to hit them squarely between the eyes, they'd yelp, "Awk!" and fall over dead.

THE STARS SAY:

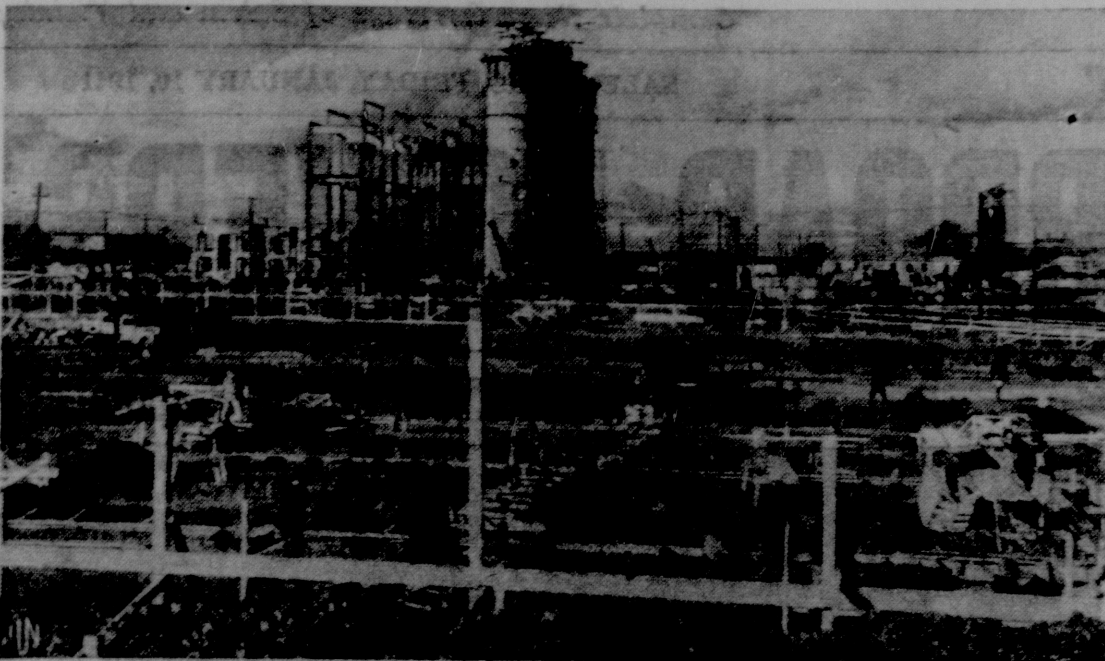

For Saturday, January 11

A PARTICULARLY lively and eventful day is presaged by an interesting chain of planetary aspects. Business, change, short journeys and all pertaining to writings, publicity, communications and promotions should flourish to notable degree. However, there are hints of treacheries, deceit and intrigue arising from sources least suspected and demanding acute vigilance.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly lively and eventful year, with all pertaining to publicity, promotion, literature, messages, as well as travel, minor changes, commercial contracts all greatly stimulated. There is danger however lurking from unsuspected places, calling for keen manipulation.

A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped with many versatile talents fitting it for business or professional success.

REPLIES TO READERS' HEALTH QUIZ

Dr. Clendening Answers Questions On Various Topics

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Is cottage cheese a substitute for meat so far as nutritional values are concerned?

It is sometimes said that cottage cheese is equal in nutritive value, pound for pound, to lean meat, and also that one pound of cottage cheese compares favorably with one quart of milk.

According to a dietetic authority, "Cottage cheese, as usually made, contains 75 per cent of water, 20.9 per cent of protein, 1 per cent of fat, and 4.3 per cent of carbohydrate. It has nutritional or caloric value of 112 calories per 100 grams.

"Porterhouse steak has 60 per cent of water, 21.9 per cent of protein, 20.4 per cent of fat, and no carbohydrate, but contains 289 calories per 100 grams, considerably more than twice as much nutritional value as cottage cheese."

The statement as to the value of milk is about correct except that, of course, the complete caloric value of milk depends upon its fat content, which varies.

Cottage cheese is a valuable substitute in the reducing diet for meat as it supplies almost as much protein but not as much caloric value. It is easily digested and a very good food for both adults and children.

Difference in Meats

What is the difference in the nutritional value of good beef, veal and pork?

This is an important economic question. Of course, beef is the most expensive and for most people the most palatable. However, there is very little real difference in the actual nutritional value and chemical composition of these meats. Veal contains a larger percent of water, and for that reason it may take a little more veal to make up for the nutritional lack, as compared with beef, but various cuts of veal and beef vary widely in percentages of water, protein and everything else. Either beef, veal or pork is a wholesome food.

Chewing Gum

Is the chewing gum habit harmful?

I wish I could say it were, but I honestly cannot. It is certainly useless and unesthetic. During prolonged gum-chewing by hardened chewers, the ptyalin content of the saliva diminishes because chewing stimulates the flow of saliva and in the course of time the salivary glands simple become worn out. However, they quickly regain their activity when the gum is placed under a chair and the next meal begins.

Liver Spots

What can be done for the brown spots called "liver spots" on face, shoulders and arms?

Liver spots have nothing to do with the liver, although people who have them are frightened with this idea. They are disturbances in the production of pigment which may come on at any time in life, most frequently after 35. Bleaches will remove them temporarily, but the fundamental mechanism which involves their production is a mystery which is beyond our methods of control.

Questions and Answers

W. W.—"Please tell me if tea is harmful to a person with high blood pressure."

Answer—Tea has no effect upon blood pressure whatever and neither has coffee. In fact, both of them probably do good by strengthening the heart muscle.

The next meeting will be the annual birthday party.

Minnesota Lakes Have 9,494 Names

(By United Press)
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The Minnesota state geographic board, vested with final authority on the names of lakes, creeks, bays points and all physical features of the state, is stumped.

The state has too many lakes; the board has too few names for them.

Confronted with the naming of 10,000 Minnesota lakes, the board found itself with 9,494 names. The study of a gazetteer published 12 years ago showed the problem had originally been avoided by duplication.

Board members said the state had 99 long lakes, 91 mud lakes, 76 rice lakes, 43 bass lakes, 40 twin lakes, 39 round lakes, 36 clear lakes 32 sand lakes, 25 pine and 24 cedar lakes.

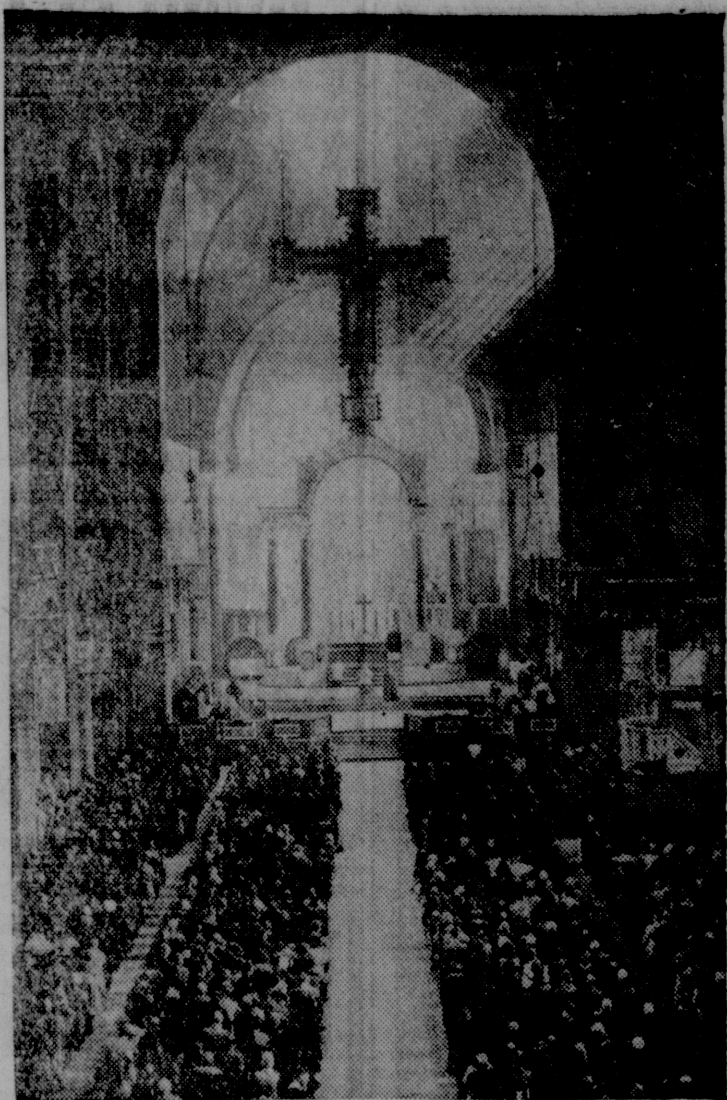

While the naming of cities, villages, towns and counties had long been legal matters, names of hills, creeks, points and bays "just grew up with the country", the board said.

Board members found imagination had not been lacking in their designation. For example, members pointed out, Minnesota lakes bear such titles as This Man's Lake, Other Man's Lake, Bal Club Lake, Parent Lake, Woman's Lake, Seven Beavers, Disappointment, Whiteface, Four Mile, Dumb, Nine Moose, Hustle, Dumbell, Whiskey and Wine lakes.

While the board will not arbitrarily change lake names, it will cooperate with local communities in such work.

Already in the doubtful state is the issuance of bonds for a new fire truck. The board of control can make no further move toward the letting of the $13,450 contract it approved some time ago until bonds are issued, as such a contract is not valid until the auditor can certify that the money is in fund. The city may not be able to issue that many bonds. Even if, by straining a point, it finds it can, it should not. With a complete change in the city's financial picture, that much money would strain the municipal pocketbook. If the city administration wants to start the new year off in the right direction—that is, in the direction of economy—it could make no wiser move than to re-advertise for bids for a less expensive fire truck. And a smaller truck would amply serve the city's needs for several years.

Along with this move the administration might join the watchdog kennel itself by not contracting bills until it was certain funds for their payment had been appropriated. And council might refuse to appropriate for purchases made before authority was given for the payment. All city officials are facing a year in which economy must be practiced. They might as well begin now by keeping an eye on every expenditure.

IN GOD WE TRUST

There used to be a time when anyone with an ordinary grasp of arithmetic could take the national budget, purse his lips over the figures and pretend to understand how income and outgo were going to be matched up to make everything come out all right in the end.

Those days are gone, probably forever. No one but a liar or a politician even pretends to be able to encompass the enormity of the budget figures that have come into style. Even the accountants who juggle them habitually leave off the last half dozen figures to save time.

In short, the idea of understanding public income and outgo in order to keep track of government finance, which was the reason for adopting the budget system in 1921, has been blown sky-high. The United States is having about as much luck explaining the budget as a lawyer explaining an insurance policy to a weeping widow. Some things in this world, like drinking water, have to be taken on faith, and the budget now is one of them.

The budget for the next fiscal year, explained to congress by President Roosevelt on Wednesday, reflects national determination to let nothing stand in the way of preparedness. Hang the expense, says Mr. Roosevelt in effect, a reminder that he formerly advised congress to hang the expense when appropriating money for the fight against depression. Of all recent chief executives, Mr. Roosevelt is most firmly committed to the proposition that free spending will turn the trick, which possibly explains why his budget messages leave taxpayers gasping.

As for the figures used to make the new budget cogent, they line up as follows, with the ciphers left off:

For the 12 months starting next July 1, income will be to outgo as 82 is to 174, which means that for every dollar taken in $2.13 will go out. Stated another way, it means that every time the government pays out 82 in cash, it will pay out 92 as an IOU. Not only will it spend all its income, represented by 82, but 92 besides, for a total of 174. Furthermore, this may be only the beginning of its spending, because no one knows how much will be spent in behalf of Great Britain and other needy nations. It probably will be enough, though, to make the ratio of income to outgo something like 82 to 222.

Effect of defense spending is represented by the figure 52, which is the number of pennies out of each dollar that will go to buy armament and all other items of preparedness for war. It is the chief reason for the lopsidedness of the budget; ordinary administrative expenses are going to be held down, and relief spending will be curtailed, though it is officially recognized that many relief beneficiaries never will be separated from the federal payroll again. By way of furnishing a round figure to impress warmakers, Mr. Roosevelt has supplied $28,000,000,000 as the amount of money the United States will spend on war preparations alone during a three-year period starting June 30, 1940.

Interesting as these ponderous sums and potent ratios are, they represent nothing but guesses. That's all a budget ever is. The official guess on income usually is too optimistic, of course, and so is the guess on outgo. One year Mr. Roosevelt missed the deficit by 422 percent, which is about as wrong as it's possible to be. Perhaps it's just as well that only a few dauntless citizens even try to make sense out of the budget, which no longer bears any relationship to ordinary family finances. If the full import of what depressions, wars and centralized political authority are doing to taxpayers ever happened to hit them squarely between the eyes, they'd yelp, "Awk!" and fall over dead.

THE STARS SAY:

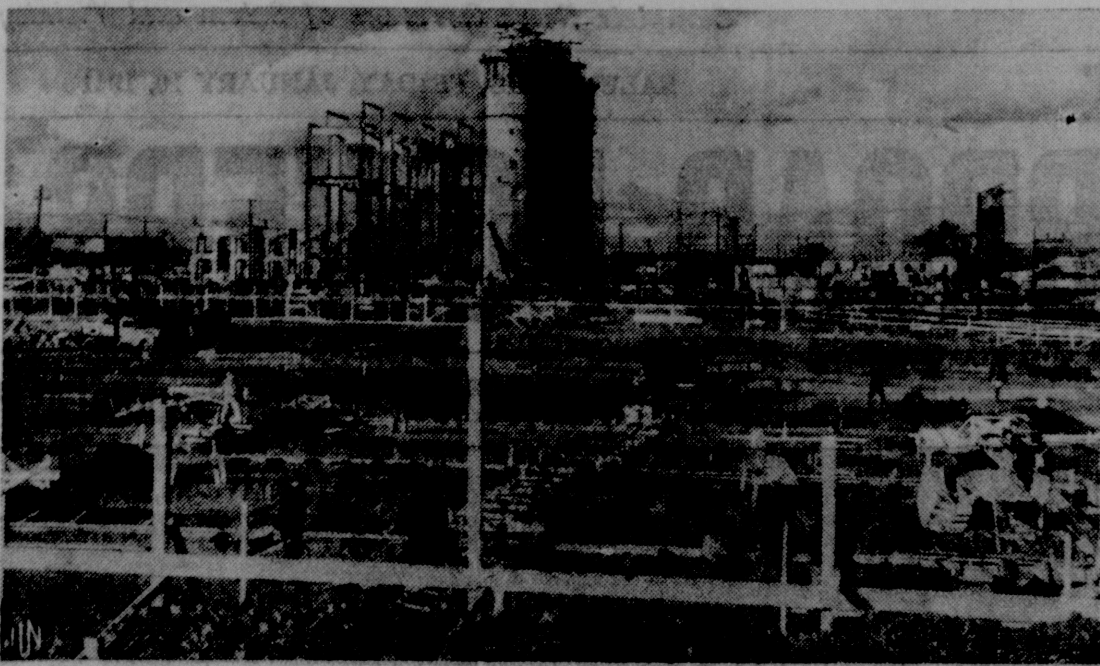

For Saturday, January 11

A PARTICULARLY lively and eventful day is presaged by an interesting chain of planetary aspects. Business, change, short journeys and all pertaining to writings, publicity, communications and promotions should flourish to notable degree. However, there are hints of treacheries, deceit and intrigue arising from sources least suspected and demanding acute vigilance.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly lively and eventful year, with all pertaining to publicity, promotion, literature, messages, as well as travel, minor changes, commercial contracts all greatly stimulated. There is danger however lurking from unsuspected places, calling for keen manipulation.

A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped with many versatile talents fitting it for business or professional success.

REPLIES TO READERS' HEALTH QUIZ

Dr. Clendening Answers Questions On Various Topics

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Is cottage cheese a substitute for meat so far as nutritional values are concerned?

It is sometimes said that cottage cheese is equal in nutritive value, pound for pound, to lean meat, and also that one pound of cottage cheese compares favorably with one quart of milk.

According to a dietetic authority, "Cottage cheese, as usually made, contains 75 per cent of water, 20.9 per cent of protein, 1 per cent of fat and 4.3 per cent of carbohydrate. It has nutritional or caloric value of 112 calories per 100 grams.

"Porterhouse steak has 60 per cent of water, 21.9 per cent of protein, 20.4 per cent of fat, and no carbohydrate, but contains 280 calories per 100 grams, considerably more than twice as much nutritional value as cottage cheese." The statement as to the value of milk is about correct except that, of course, the complete caloric value of milk depends upon its fat content, which varies.

Cottage cheese is a valuable substitute in the reducing diet for meat as it supplies almost as much protein but not as much caloric value. It is easily digested and a very good food for both adults and children.

Difference in Meats

What is the difference in the nutritional value of good beef, veal and pork?

This is an important economic question. Of course, beef is the most expensive and for most people the most palatable. However, there is very little real difference in the actual nutritional value and chemical composition of these meats. Veal contains a larger percent of water, and for that reason it may take a little more veal to make up for the nutritional lack, as compared with beef, but various cuts of veal and beef vary widely in percentages of water, protein and everything else. Either beef, veal or pork is a wholesome food.

Chewing Gum

Is the chewing gum habit harmful? I wish I could say it were, but I honestly cannot. It is certainly useless and unattractive. During prolonged gum-chewing by hardened chewers, the ptyalin content of the saliva diminishes because chewing stimulates the flow of saliva and in the course of time the salivary glands simply become worn out. However, they quickly regain their activity when the gum is placed under a chair and the next meal begins.

Liver Spots

What can be done for the brown spots called "liver spots" on face, shoulders and arms?

Liver spots have nothing to do with the liver, although people who have them are frightened with this idea. They are disturbances in the production of pigment which may come on at any time in life, most frequently after 35. Bleaches will remove them temporarily, but the fundamental mechanism which involves their production is a mystery which is beyond our methods of control.

Questions and Answers

W. W.: "Please tell me if tea is harmful to a person with high blood pressure."

Answer:—Tea has no effect upon blood pressure whatever and neither has coffee. In fact, both of them probably do good by strengthening the heart muscle.

COLUMBIANA CLUB DISCUSSES CANADA

Mrs. Louise Quigley Hostess; Interesting Program Is Given

COLUMBIANA, Jan. 10. Mrs. Louise Quigley welcomed members of the Sorosis club at her home on S. Main st. Wednesday. Mrs. E. T. Cogle, club president, presided at the business meeting. The program topic was "Canada, Our Neighbor".

Papers were read by Mrs. L. I. Garrard on "The People"; Mrs. Ed. Berman had a paper on "Canada, The Siren"; and Miss Mollie Buzard read a paper on "The Geographical Relation of Canada".

The program concluded by reading of poetry by Mrs. Ralph Hura and history of Canadian poets. The next meeting will be at the home of Miss Nell Koch in two weeks.

The January meeting of the Presbyterian Towasi class was held at the church Wednesday evening with 31 present. Mrs. James Barrow, president, presided at the business meeting.

Mrs. H. C. Nolan led devotionals. Mrs. Russell Esterly and Mrs. C. W. Dewalt had charge of the program, which included a talk by Miss Dorothy Martin on her trip to Mexico. Mrs. Dewalt showed pictures of her trip through Mexico. Lunch was served by the hostesses. Mrs. Ralph Brungard, Mrs. Charles Kyser and Mrs. Cecil Kyser. The next meeting will be the annual birthday party.

Minnesota Lakes Have 9,494 Names

(By United Press)
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The Minnesota state geographic board, vested with final authority on the names of lakes, creeks, bays points and all physical features of the state, is stumped.

The state has too many lakes; the board has too few names for them. Confronted with the naming of 10,000 Minnesota lakes, the board found itself with 9,494 names. The study of a gazetteer published 12 years ago showed the problem had originally been avoided by duplication.

Board members said the state had 99 long lakes, 91 mud lakes, 76 rice lakes, 43 bass lakes, 40 twin lakes, 39 round lakes, 36 clear lakes, 32 sand lakes, 25 pine and 24 cedar lakes.

While the naming of cities, villages, towns and counties had long been legal matters, names of hills, creeks, points and bays "just grew up with the country", the board said.

Board members found imagination had not been lacking in their designation. For example, members pointed out, Minnesota lakes bear such titles as This Man's Lake, Other Man's Lake, Ball Club Lake, Parent Lake, Woman's Lake, Seven Beavers, Disappointment, Whiteface, Four Mile, Dumb, Nine Moose, Hustle, Dumbell, Whiskey and Wine lakes.

While the board will not arbitrarily change lake names, it will cooperate with local communities in such work.

Walter D. Edmonds' exciting story, "Red Wheels Rolling", comes to the screen in technicolor as "Chad Hanna", showing at the State tonight through Saturday.

Chad Hanna, a simple-minded country boy, dazzled by the flirtatious Albany Yates, circus bareback queen, joins the show she travels with to be near her, forgetting the young country girl who adores him. Circumstances, however, make her one of the circus performers too, understudy of the ovary star of the show.

An appealing story of colorful people, human drama and romance, film also features Dorothy Lamour as the bareback queen, Henry Fonda as the boy, Linda Darnell as the country girl, Guy Kibbee as the show's owner, John Carradine, Roscoe Ates, Jane Darwell and Ben Carter.

Thomas To Sing Here

Thomas L. Thomas, young Welsh baritone, will be heard in the second of the series of concerts given by the Northern Columbiana County Concert association Wednesday evening, Jan. 15, in the high school auditorium. The concert will begin at 8:30.

Thomas will be making his second appearance here, sponsored by the association which numbers members in Salem, Lisbon, Leetonia and other neighboring towns.

Officers of the association, headed by Dr. Richard C. Harwood, announce that a number of guest tickets are available for the concert. Arrangements for guest admissions must be made immediately through members with Mrs. E. E. Byball, secretary, phone 5580.

The baritone voice of Thomas is similar to millions through his innumerable broadcasts. He also has sung at the Metropolitan and more recently has entered the concert field.

Thomas' reputation as a singer goes back to his early boyhood in Maesteg, South Wales, where as a child of five, he was already appearing in children's cantatas at local churches. By the time he was ten, he was participating in amateur performances of Gilbert and Sullivan operas, one of his earliest roles being Sir Joseph Porter in "H.M.S. Pinafore."

When he was 12, his family came to the United States, settling in Scranton, Pa.

Winning a contest in 1932, he took his $1,000 prize money and went to New York for further vocal coaching. Soon he was singing in New York churches and later was engaged for important radio hours.

In 1937 he won the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air which, in addition to its $1,000 prize money, brought him the opportunity to make his debut at the Metropolitan under the New York Philharmonic symphony orchestra.

The Feb. 13 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Glenn T. Harding on Homewood ave., with Mrs. Huntley Pierce as associate hostess.

Mrs. F. P. Crawford is recovering at her home on E. Eighth st., following a recent illness of bronchial pneumonia.

LOCK SAYS:

BETTER STOCK UP WITH CANNED GOODS!

Due to government spending in stocking up for army camps and the shipping of food across the water, many packers are predicting a shortage of products, some of which may not last until new crops. As stocks go down, prices will go up.

Each week we will offer exceptionally good buys on quality canned goods. Watch for them and take advantage of the low prices we will quote. Above all, remember this: All of the canned goods we sell are solid packed, not a large percentage of juice or liquid, as so often found in low priced chain store brands; not packed for quality but packed for a price bait.

Remember this: If at any time you purchase an item at our store that is not as represented, bring it back or the label from the can and we will cheerfully refund your money. This method of doing business is one reason we have been in business in Salem going on to a half century.

Trying to Balance the Budget

Senator Alva B. Adams

Senator Alva B. Adams of Colorado finds balancing the new 1941 U. S. budget quite a job, judging from the expression on his face as he is photographed in his Washington office after hearing President Roosevelt's budget message which calls for a record peacetime outlay of $17,485,000,000. Senator Adams is a member of the senate appropriations and banking currency committee.

Tool Makers To Be Trained By Thousands; Program Set

(By United Press) DETROIT, Jan. 10. — The United States never again will be caught in an emergency without enough skilled workers to swing full speed into a national defense production program, according to a broad new educational plan just formulated by the American Society of Tool Engineers.

The society soon will release through its 37 chapters a three-point training program to local school boards which eventually may turn out skilled men by the thousands. Ford R. Lamb, executive secretary of the society said.

An acute shortage of machinists, tool and die makers and machine designers has been the principal bottleneck in attempts to retool and expand factories for defense production, and the society estimated last summer that 1,200,000 technical and skilled workmen were needed for defense requirements.

Skill Requires Time
This figure, Lamb said, has not changed "because we can make a semi-skilled machine operator in four to six weeks but it takes years to train a skilled mechanic or tool and die maker."

Lamb said it was impossible to operate tool and die machine shops on a three-shift day, seven-day week as requested by production chief William S. Knudsen "because it would take 300 per cent more manpower than we have."

Whereas the solution to the immediate problem is longer working hours for each employee, Lamb said, the education program will assure the industry of a plentiful supply of manpower in the future. Acting only in an advisory capacity, the society, composed of men employed in the industry, will submit programs to high schools, colleges and manufacturers.

The first part of the general education plan is the emergency training course for manufacturers in which semi-skilled workers to handle a repetitive machine may be trained in four to six weeks. The best of the class will be selected for additional training of from one to one and a half years and skilled workers will be trained for tool and machine design. From the design group a few will be moved into processing, designing supervision and operation sheet writing. The men will be productive throughout the course, Lamb said.

Course for High Schools
The second section of the system will be a high school course designed to include necessary training and experience which most colleges can accept for entrance requirements. At the end of this course workers will be semi-skilled machine operators with a prospect of entering the college stage of the program.

The science of tool engineering will be emphasized in college, Lamb said, instead of the present mechanical and electrical courses "which leave the student with the entire field of tool engineering to learn after he is graduated."

Lamb said that Buffalo, N. Y., and Paterson and Newark, N. J., districts already had adopted similar training programs in public schools. Education and industry, he said, gradually are drifting back together.

Ninth Fatality

BOWLING GREEN, Jan. 10. — Ninth fatality in five months at an unprotected grade crossing on U. S. Route 6 here was R. J. Drake, 35, of Downers Grove, Ill. His automobile was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad locomotive.

Killed By Train

UPPER SANDUSKY, Jan. 10. — A passenger train killed Maurice People, 22, as the Findlay truck driver crossed double tracks at nearby Kirby. A freight train was approaching from the opposite direction at the time.

Today's Lesson in Flag Etiquette

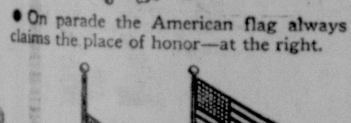

The flag should always be flown or displayed with the stars to the left and with the stripes floating to the right.

When hanging with the stripes in a vertical position, the stars should always appear in upper left hand corner.

On parade the American flag always claims the place of honor—at the right.

When flown at half-staff the flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. Before lowering the flag it should be raised again to the peak. On Memorial Day, May 30, the flag should be displayed at half-staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset.

Editors Note: In tune with America's national defense program and patriotic emotions at high pitch, display of the American flags becoming increasingly popular. In response to a widespread demand from the general public for information pertaining to the proper usage of the flag the Salem News in cooperation with the national department of Americanism, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, introduces this first of a series of five daily lessons in "Flag Etiquette."

These illustrated instructions are based on national flag code regulations, as approved by representatives of a large number of patriotic and civic bodies and endorsed by the United States army and the United States navy. These rules constitute the unwritten law of the flag and this feature is presented with the hope it will prove helpful in creating in the hearts and minds of American citizens a greater reverence for the Stars and Stripes and the principles for which it stands.

Watch the columns of The Salem News for this streamlined course in flag appreciation. It will answer all your questions on how to salute the flag, how it should be flown on patriotic occasions, how it should be carried in parades and many other rules about the flag which all patriotic citizens should observe.

FAD DIET WARNING ISSUED BY DOCTOR

Chicago Dermatologist Explains Dangers of Certain "Remedies"

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Persons who indulge in "fad diets" which advocate excessive consumption of carrots or orange juice may develop yellow patches on the palms of their hands or soles of their feet, according to Dr. William S. Becker, University of Chicago dermatologist.

Speaking at the third annual meeting of the American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology here, Dr. Becker said that carrots and oranges contain a yellow dye called "carotene" which, if used to excess, cause yellow patches to appear on the skin.

In like manner, drugs, containing large amounts of silver, gold or mercury compounds "often produce weird changes in the color of the skin when used indiscriminately and over a long period," Dr. Becker said.

Certain nose and throat sprays and eye washes, particularly old-fashioned remedies, contain silver compounds which may give the skin a blue-gray color, he said. Silver compounds also are used to treat syphilis and may have the same effect on the skin.

Gold compounds sometimes are used to treat arthritis and tuberculosis, Dr. Becker said.

Other types of discoloration which Dr. Becker discussed included sun tan, freckles, and albinism.

Sun tan, he said, is due to an increase of melanin, the natural skin pigment, caused by the action of sun rays. When the melanin is not evenly distributed over the skin but bunches up in small areas, freckles or tiny spots of sun tan result.

Albinism, or white patches on the skin, is due to lack of melanin and may be inherited or be acquired. The cause of the acquired type, known as "vitiligo," is not yet fully understood, he said, but has in many cases been correlated with mental and nervous disorders. Vitiligo may be cured, Becker said, but hereditary albinism has a permanently bleached skin which can only be remedied by staining the white patches with various dye compounds prepared for that purpose.

Penny Plus Tax Causes Boy's Throat Troubles

RICHFIELD, Utah—There's getting to be a tax on everything in Utah—especially the imagination. Dr. David E. Ostler, Richfield physician, reports a recent incident in which one of his 4-year-old patients was troubled with pains in the throat after swallowing a penny.

While Dr. Ostler was contemplating removal of the coin, the boy coughed and with the penny piece a one-mill Utah tax token was dislodged from his throat.

Confirmation

RENO—Victor Visek's airmail letter told him his wife had started home after visiting her mother in Poland, Czechoslovakia.

But she's been home nearly a year. Her letter, mailed Aug. 24, 1939, was delayed by the war.

Discuss Chicago City Strike

Mayor Edward J. Kelly and city aldermen of Chicago meet in the mayor's office to discuss the strike called by city employees over pay cuts. The city council finance committee voted the pay cuts aggregating $500,000. Sixteen A. F. of L. unions embracing city employees voted to strike at their meeting.

Increased Velocity Of Earthquakes In U. S. Is Charted

(By United Press)

HARVARD, Mass.—Dr. L. Don Lett, director of the Harvard seismograph station, reports new velocity measurements of earthquake waves that change present theories of underground conditions.

Using a new sensitive seismograph, he conducted a study of 50 earthquakes occurring in New England and vicinity during the past six years.

Dr. Lett found a new high velocity for waves traveling in the upper layer of the so-called "mantle" of the earth, some 21 miles beneath the surface. His measurements showed "push" waves, a form imparting a back-and-forth motion, travel at 5.2 miles a second. The previously accepted velocity was 4.8 miles a second.

A part of the study he was able to map, for the first time, the earth's surface layers in the New England area. The top layer, he found, is dominantly granitic and stretches down nine miles. A second layer composed of heavier minerals, probably basaltic, is six miles thick. A third layer, of undetermined composition, is six miles thick.

PHILADELPHIA—Peter Arrell Brown Widener, 2nd, whose autobiographical work, "Without Drums," recently was published, plans another about the 50 years his father, Joseph E. Widener, has been breeding and racing horses. "The writing bug's definitely bitten me," Widener said. "But I must stick to facts. I have no imagination."

Artist Gives You Impression of Balkans Today

Here is how the "armed" camp of the Balkans looks to the artist. Upwards of 150,000 German soldiers, together with tanks, airplanes and guns have rolled down to the Black sea through helpless Hungary for Hitler's expected move of expansion to the coast.

Co-eds Advised Against Wearing Bright Colors

(By United Press)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa. — Women should select becoming colors and not to fit to the current styles, according to a Westminster college art professor.

Harold J. Brennan, head of the art department, told Westminster co-eds to observe the following hints:

Don't wear obvious, bright colors; wear subtle off-shades.

Don't fail to look at the color of a street dress by daylight before buying it.

Don't wear bright colors in large masses; wear them as accessories, such as a bracelet or a handkerchief.

Don't ask your girl friend about your clothes unless you're sure she will be frank with you.

Don't forget that texture is as important as color in determining the kind of clothes that look well on you.

BOARD TO PROTECT DWINDLING WATER

Serious Situation Is Seen
In Recession of State
Water Table

To the water supply board with five members to serve five years without compensation other than traveling expenses and to meet not fewer than four times a year.

The Ohio chamber directors also recommend complete revision of Ohio civil service laws to put the system under a director and a commission of three or five members instead of the present two-member commission.

The directors also decided to ask the state tax department for a ruling granting property used in production for the national defense program the same depreciation rates as permitted by the federal government.

Shotgun Kills Child

ELYRIA, Jan. 10 — A shotgun fell from the hands of three-year-old Richard Minnich, discharging and killing the boy, son of Clarence Minnich, former Ohio National Guard supply officer at the Elyria armory. The father reported that the child loaded the gun while members of the family played cards in another room. The lad learned to handle guns by watching his father.

SEVEN INJURED IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS

Northeastern Ohio Roads
Dangerous, State Patrol Reports

yesterday afternoon. State patrolmen made the arrest.

In an accident at Youngstown Wednesday, Chester Hurst, 33, of 275 N. E. 5th ave., received possible fractured ribs and a laceration over his left eye.

Police said the accident occurred when Hurst attempted to pass a Youngstown city truck as the truck was about to make a turn. The Salem man's car side-swiped the truck and then jumped the curb. George Burton, 34, of R. D. 2, Canfield, was in charge of the truck.

C. S. Shear, 57, of Alliance, was treated at the Alliance City hospital for abrasions of the forehead after his car skidded off Route 62, near Damascus, last night.

Enlargement Field

DAYTON, Jan. 10 — Enlargement of the army air corps' Wright field here by 211 acres more than originally planned will be begun today through condemnation suits against 23 properties, Eugene A. Mayl, special government counsel, disclosed. The field covers 748 acres at present and 745 will be added instead of 534 acres, Mayl said.

LEETONIA CHURCH OFFICERS NAMED

Coverdish Dinner Precedes Lutheran Congregational Meeting

LEETONIA, Jan. 10 — At the annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's Lutheran church Wednesday evening, S. Hayes Siler, Harry D. Hollaway and H. Ross Mellinger were elected members of the church council for three years. A coverdish dinner in the recreation room preceded the business meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crothers entertained members of the senior choir of St. Paul's Lutheran church at their home in Washingtonville Thursday evening. A box lunch concluded the evening's program. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde R. Shontz and Mrs. Eva S. G. Ashley attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Roxie F. Wood, 87, of Columbus, at the Woodside cemetery, near Wintona Wednesday afternoon.

Fire Destroys Records

ABERDEEN, Jan. 10 — Yellowed marriage records of a half century ago when this Brown county village was a popular "Gretna Green" have gone up in smoke. Charles C. Ellis, 83, owner of the building containing the records, escaped the fire.

Slays Employer

James Keller

Police at Hamilton, O., held James Keller, 24, above, in connection with the slaying of James Connelly, 79, internationally known machinery manufacturer, found beaten to death in his shop office. Acting Police Chief H. M. Haines said Keller confessed he clubbed Connelly with a steel bar when the latter confronted him with a $14 forged check.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

That night when the roomer returned he was met on the steps by a detective who flashed a light on his face. Another policeman came across the street and stood impassively behind the young man. "You are Edward Fleming?" asked the first.

The young man looked from one dark, forbidding shape to the other. "Yes," he admitted.

"You'll have to come along with us."

"And if I refuse?"

"That would be too bad; we'd take you anyway."

"On what charge?"

"On suspicion of being concerned in the murder of Octavia Osborne at Lakelawn."

Later on a police car rushed Ted Fleming to Bradbury where he was lodged in a detention room at police headquarters. Early the following morning his father came to see him. Lawyer Fleming wore a long face as he looked at his son with mingled affection and anxiety.

"Well, my boy, this is a terrible business!"

"I know, Dad," said Ted nervously, running his fingers through his tousled hair. "But it isn't as bad as it looks, I swear!"

"I hope not; I most sincerely hope not."

Mr. Fleming placed hat, gloves and brief-case on the iron bed, then paced up and down the narrow cell. He sighed.

"You've given your mother and me an exceedingly trying time. Whatever you were up against, running away was the worst thing you could do. However—let me hear the whole story."

When the story was told, Mr. Fleming took off his spectacles and polished them vigorously. He put them on again.

"Thank heaven, it's no worse!" he said, patting his son's shoulder. "I can't tell you what I had feared. Now we are going upstairs to see the Sheriff and I want you to tell him exactly what you've told me. No—on second thought, let me do the talking, as far as possible."

He sighed again, glancing oddly at Ted over the top of his spectacles.

"Your mother's a masterful woman, a very masterful woman. I've let her have her own way, more or less; I'm afraid I lacked the necessary stamina to stand up to her. In my case it's worked out fairly well on the whole, but if you let her run your life she'll almost certainly make a mess of it. Have a little gumption, my boy! Oh, well, it's your own affair."

He rapped on the door; a constable came to let them out and conduct them upstairs. Sheriff Black was waiting for them in an office. Mr. Fleming greeted both officials pleasantly. Ted looked sheepish.

"The mountain labored and brought forth a mouse," quoted the lawyer, dropping into a chair and hitching up the knees of his trousers. "When you've heard my son's story, gentlemen, I think you'll agree that he's behaved like a fool—but not a criminal."

"We'll reserve judgment on that point, Mr. Fleming," said Black noncommittally, "until we've heard the story."

He looked searchingly at Ted. "Well, young man?"

Ted cleared his throat, glancing uneasily at his father.

"The suggestion that my son should leave for Washington the day following the murder," said the lawyer smoothly, "originally emanated from his mother. You don't know my wife, Sheriff? Well, to be perfectly frank, Mrs. Fleming has a habit of having her own way. She is a fond mother, perhaps over-fond, entirely devoted to Ted, who is our only son. We first heard of the murder late in the afternoon on which it was committed, and, at dinner that evening, Ted announced that he intended to marry the eldest Osborne girl. His mother was horrified. Ted and Dorothy Osborne had always been the best of friends, but my wife had no idea that the attachment was warmer than friendship. She declared that the marriage could not be considered for a moment in view of the scandal in which the girl's whole family had suddenly become involved."

"Ted put up a fight, but I think I said—did I not?—that his mother has a habit of having her own way. Against my better judgment, I permitted myself to be enlisted on her side and we coerced Ted by every means in our power. After a heated discussion which lasted well into the night, Ted reluctantly agreed to go away for a few months. His understanding was that, by the time he returned, the scandal would have blown over and the marriage would then be more feasible. His mother's intention was to put a stop to the affair for good while he was gone."

"The following day, Sunday, my son left for Washington. On the train he thought over the whole situation and decided that, in yielding to his parents, he was being unfair to the girl he loved. He decided to take the next train home but, when it came so the point, he found that he could not do that. His mother had put it to him that, unless he broke with Miss Osborne for the time being at least, he would be estranged from us for good. Quite naturally, he felt that this was a prospect not lightly to be faced."

"He could not make up his mind what to do. His parents and his future—or the girl he loved? No easy choice, gentlemen. There was a train leaving for the shore resort where he was apprehended last night and, on a sudden whim, he decided. We wanted time to think, to make up his mind in peace."

"You stayed there for over a week, although you knew we were looking for you?" said Inspector Burrows sharply, scowling at Ted.

"I knew so little about the murder—and it was vital for me to settle my own problem."

"You've put us to considerable trouble and expense, young man," growled the Inspector. "And made a mess of it against you a lot blacker than I was."

"Come, Inspector," said Mr. Fleming blandly, "you won't go as far as to say that there's a case against him? Isn't that putting it rather strongly?"

"Well, he was seen approaching the Osborne house in suspicious manner half an hour before the murder was discovered, carrying in his hand the silk scarf with which the murder was committed. If those facts don't constitute a pretty stiff case against him," grunted Burrows, "I'll eat my shoes, nails and all!"

"Yes, I did go to the house about three that afternoon," Ted admitted, "but to say that my manner was suspicious is silly. I may have been a little nervous. You see, I was going to ask Mr. Osborne for permission to marry his daughter; and at a time like that a fellow naturally feels—"

"Quite," agreed Sheriff Black, "but if you went to see Mr. Osborne I should have thought your obvious course would be to ring the front doorbell and ask for him."

"But I knew I'd probably find him in the garden."

"And did you?"

"No, he wasn't there."

"So you entered the house through the living room windows," murmured Inspector Burrows casually—a little too casually.

Ted stared. "You're quite wrong. I didn't enter the house at all. I meant to go in that way; in fact, I was on the point of doing so, when I noticed the old lady sitting there and changed my mind."

"What about the scarf?" Burrows demanded fiercely. "You were carrying it when you approached the house; half an hour later, it was knotted tightly about the old lady's neck!"

The young man turned pale.

"I don't know how it got there. Dorothy came over to my house to play tennis shortly after lunch but she went home in a short while, with a headache. She left the scarf on a seat beside the court and, when I went over to see her father, I took it with me with the intention of returning it."

"What did you do with it?"

"When I turned away from the living room windows, I decided to go home and come back to see Mr. Osborne later. As I walked past the side of the house, I noticed that a window which opens into the hall was ajar. I put my hand through and tossed the scarf onto a chair."

There was some further questioning, after which the Flemings were permitted to depart, but Ted was cautioned that he must not attempt to leave the neighborhood again without permission from the police. When father and son had gone, Sheriff Black looked at Burrows with raised eyebrows.

"Well?"

"I think he's lying, Sheriff. Trying to protect his prospective father-in-law. There was more on his mind the week he was away than the problem of defying his parents, or he'd have reached a decision sooner. I really think he met Stephen Osborne in the garden and gave him the scarf to return to Dorothy."

Enroute to Lakelawn after leaving police headquarters, Ted drove his father's car in his burning impotence keeping the speedometer needle quivering between the sixty and seventy marks. At his parents' house, he brought the big car to a sudden halt.

"You'd better come in for a minute, Ted," said Mr. Fleming quietly. "Your mother will want to see with her own eyes that you're all right."

"I'll be home later," Ted replied, driving off soon after his father left the car. Soon Ted was standing on the doorstep of Stephen Osborne's house, furiously ringing the bell.

The door opened and Hannah Gale's face appeared in the aperture. Dour and forbidding, it was the face which had greeted most callers of late; and few of them had been sufficiently bold to attempt to enter. Her expression relaxed at sight of young Fleming. She almost beamed.

"Master Ted! Well, I am pleased to see you. This will be a big load off Miss Dorothy's mind. Come in, come in! I'll tell her you're here."

"Thanks, Hannah. You're swell!" To Hannah's mind the occasion called for something more dramatic than a formal announcement of a caller. She went to the front of the stairs and in a stentorian voice bellowed:

"Miss Dorothy! It's Mister Fleming! Mister Edward Fleming's here, Miss Dorothy!"

A door opened on the upper landing, and Dorothy came running downstairs.

"Ted! Then you're all right? The police have let you go? I was so afraid when your father let us know last night that they'd found you."

"I'm all right, darling. They let me go this morning after I'd answered a few questions."

"Oh, I'm so glad!"

PITTSBURGH — Declaring that "chivalry and gallantry" were not involved, Judge Michael A. Musmanno sentenced a woman to jail on a charge of drunken driving.

Because "womanhood is more sensitive to pain than man," however, he gave her 15 days—half the sentence he usually gives to men.

Boy, 13, Who Killed Employer

Judge William Rasmussen, of Stanton, Mich., probate court listens to Robert Eberhart, 13, sob out his story of the slaying of his 73-year-old employer. The boy, son of impoverished parents, told the judge that he had shot the employer, Ben Perrier, to death because of mistreatment and because he had been denied a vacation. The boy will be sent to a vocational school, it is believed.

DETROIT BUILDS MEDICAL CENTER

(By United Press)
 DETROIT—A $100,000,000 city medical center, with extensive hospital facilities for the exclusive use of indigent patients, will begin to take shape here when projected construction work is started early in the spring.

First of several individual units to be constructed will be a hospital and medical science building. Laboratory buildings, an out-patient hospital, women's and children's medical centers, a nurses' training school, and dormitories for staff members will be added as the plant is expanded.

Sponsored by the Wayne University Foundation, under the supervision of the university's college of medicine, the plant will be located on a campus overlooking the Detroit river, on the site of Detroit's old Memorial park. Adjoining property will be acquired as the plant expands, and a fund of more than $8,000,000 has already been accumulated for that purpose.

With buildings, equipment and virtually all operating expenses financed by funds from philanthropic agencies and private donors, the huge plant will cost taxpayers only an estimated $25,000 a year for heat, light and janitor service.

Alliance Polishes Up Offense For Salem Battle Tonight

CHARLES JENKINS, SPEEDY FORWARD, RETURNS TO GAME

Undefeated Salem reserves Play Aviator Seconds In Preliminary

ALLIANCE, Jan. 10.—Undismayed by their 49-39 loss to Canton McKinley's Bulldogs, Coach Phil Heim's Alliance Aviators are ready for two tests against Salem and Barborton this weekend.

The Aviators will trek to Salem tonight and will invade Barborton Saturday night.

The Alliance Reserves are also slated to see action at both Salem and Barborton. The Alliance reserves have lost three straight games while, on the other hand, the Salem Reserves are undefeated.

Jenkins Returns

Victor in three of five games, the Aviators appear to be in good shape for this week's tilt. Coach Heim said Wednesday that Charles Jenkins, sharp eyed forward, will be ready for a full game's action against Salem.

Jenkins has seen only brief service in the last three games. Against McKinley he was benched until the closing minutes when he was inserted long enough to dazzle the Bulldog defense with a burst of scoring speed that netted him eight points. He has been working out regularly with the squad and, although he may not be traveling at top speed tonight, his presence will bolster the Aviator attack considerably.

When Jenkins goes back into the lineup, Coach Heim will be faced with another problem. He has been using rangy Dick Fritz at Jenkins' position and Fritz has played so well he merits better than reserve duty.

Coach Heim may have to wait until the end of the semester to solve the problem of what to do with Fritz. At midyear Alliance will be hard hit by the loss of Octave Greco, one of the offensive stars of the team, and Bud Addison. Fritz will be assured of regular duty when these two mainstays depart.

Lutsch To Move Up

Moving up to the first team with Fritz will probably be William Lutsch, a six foot two inch performer who has shown flashes of form in Alliance's early games. Lutsch and Fritz, while they may not equal the scoring ability of Green and Addison, will add height to the Aviator team.

A third candidate is Charles Gahner, quarterback on the Aviator eleven last fall. Gahner has been working with the regulars this week and his speed has stood him in good stead with the varsity.

BOWLING RESULTS

Smith's Creamery pulled up to within two games of the league-leading Crescent Machines last night as they trounced the Machineists three straight games in the Commercial loop at Grate's. Huffer of Smith Creamery chalked up 203, 213, 204, for a 629 total.

The third-place Washingtonville I. O. O. F. crew kept on the leader's heels by trimming the Polo club three straight. Spear led the Washingtonville quint with a 575 total.

The Palace Lunch swept three frames from the Jaycee All-Stars while Zimmerman's Olds did likewise with Hilliard's.

The People's Lumber five remained high in the standings, sweeping three games from the Lectoria Eagles.

Bliss added three wins to their standings on a forfeit by the Trades Class but also lost three games to Hilliard's in a postponed match.

The Electricians temporarily broke their first-place tie with the Purchasing Department in the Electric Furnace loop last night as they won three games from the Shippers while the Purchasers' match was postponed.

The Draftsmen took sole possession of third place, winning one out of three from the Transformers while the Office took two games from the Machineists. Burrell of the Machineists had a good second frame, hitting the 220 mark.

WOOSTER TOPPLES JOHN CARROLL FOR 36TH LEAGUE WIN

Youngstown trims DeSales, 62-50; Xavier Loses to Kentucky

The powerful Wooster college Scots still point the way for the Ohio conference on the basketball floor.

Wooster steam-rolled the strong John Carroll team at Cleveland last night, 40 to 24, coasting to their 36th consecutive conference victory after banging in 13 points to John Carroll's lone field goal in the first quarter. The half-time lead was 30-7.

Dick Gernert and Gilbert Hole, forwards, led the Wooster scoring with 11 and 10 points while their center, Frank Gernert, held John Carroll's usually high scoring Johnny Freedman to a lone basket and five free throws.

Three out of five Ohio teams which played out of state quintets came out on the long end of the scores. The only losers were Xavier, dropping a 48 to 43 decision at Cincinnati to the University of Kentucky, and Giffin, which lost to Huntington 41 to 34. The two teams have met 13 times and Xavier has won only once. Sophomore forward Milt Tico of Kentucky led both teams with 26 points.

Findlay Rallies

Findlay college, after being tied with Adrian (Mich.) college 20-20 at halftime, ran away to a 52-32 victory with Forward Zuercher getting 17 points and guard John Howard 16. The game was played at Findlay.

Denison won at Granville, besting Hobart college 44 to 28 in the New York school's first game of the season. The teams played on even terms for 10 minutes.

Rio Grande Has Close Call

A successful free throw by Forward Howard Vulgamore in the last minute gave Rio Grande college a 61 to 60 win over Pikeville (Ky.) Junior college at Rio Grande, Jack Duncan, a forward, scored 24 points for the winners.

Two other games were on the evening's program, Youngstown college topping De Sales of Toledo at Youngstown 62 to 50 and Oberlin Business college beating Ohio College of Chiroquy 42-29 at Oberlin.

DeSales gave Youngstown a scare by knocking the count at 38-all at the end of the third period.

Tonight's schedule: Wittenberg at Marietta (Ohio conference), Slippery Rock at Mount Union, Toledo at Bradley, Baldwin Wallace at Western Reserve, Wilberforce at Bluffton, Hobart at Kenyon and Tiffin at Cedarville.

MANGRUM LEADS IN OAKLAND GOLF OPEN

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 10.—Paced by Lloyd Mangrum, the country's leading linkmen took a fresh grip on their clubs today for a second-round whirl with par and each other in the $5,000 Oakland 72-hole open tournament.

Mangrum, a professional at Oak Park, Ill., whacked a nifty 67, three under par on the Sequoyah course, in his opening effort. It was good enough to lead a field of more than 20 which included present and past national champions and the cream of the crop among those who play for pay.

The present champion of the professionals' own private tournament, Byron Nelson, was trailing far behind with the 74-stroke men.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Baseball men want Judge Brannham's office to get up a list, showing the draft status of all minor league players.

.....Don't know why, but newspapers around the country aren't what you might call egg over Alice Marble's pro tour.... You are liable to find at least six Boston college payers on the New York Herald-Tribune's Eastern All-Star squad next fall.... Jimmy Wilson is going to leave his Philadelphia home and move his family and permanent residence to Chicago.

Come On, Jim

If Farley does get off the fence and buys the baseball Yanks, He'll end a horrible suspense And earn the public's thanks.

Dodgers estimate their 50 exhibition games will put $250,000 in the old strong box before the season opens.... Hope Johnny Bulla, who showed up the field with his 35-cent golf ball, is reading the rave notices he is getting in the eastern papers.... Dewey Frigette, who books boxers from coast to coast, placed 210 last year. Busiest was Buddy Knox, who fought 17 times and made $22,000.

Today's Guest Star

H. G. Selsinger, Detroit News: "If John Kimbrough plans on counting pennies until someone offers him more than $37,500 to play pro football, he'd better abandon the idea, for there are not that many pennies in the world."

At the N. Y. Boxing Writers' dinner last night, at which Henry Armstrong was given the Edward J. Neil Memorial trophy for doing the most, for boxing last year, President Murray Lewin of the Daily Mirror opened proceedings by ringing the bell the timekeeper used at New Orleans, Sept. 7, 1932, when James J. Corbett won the heavyweight championship by knocking out John L. Sullivan in 21 rounds.

Football preview: Harry Stuhldreder, Wisconsin coach, thinks it will be Minnesota and Northwestern in the Big Ten this fall.... In their first five games of the season, the Kent State eagles had five different high point men.

Good Night

Says Mr. Farley: "I expect to have the Yanks by the time I get back from South America." Which is just where we came in.

McNEILL AND RIGGS RANK AS FAVORITES

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 10.—Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, national singles champion, and Bobby Riggs of Chicago, former national champion, headed into the quarter finals of the Annual Dixie Tennis tournament today and were rated favorites to meet for the title.

Riggs meets Frank Guernsey of Orlando, Fla., who eliminated Gardner Larned of Chicago, 6-1, 6-2, yesterday, while McNeill goes against Hal Surface of Kansas City.

McNeill reached the bracket of eight by defeating Vincent Paul of New York, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, while Surface advanced by beating Norman Brooks of Oakland, Calif., 6-0, 6-2.

CLEVELAND FIGHT FANS STEAM UP FOR WORLD TITLE BOUT

Bettina, Christoforidis have N. B. A. Blessing; Heavy Advance Sale

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10.—The city's dinky boxing emporiums came to life and the bookmakers did a brisk business today as Cleveland steamed up for its first world championship fight in 10 years.

A 15 round bout Monday night, billed for the light heavyweight crown by the National Boxing association, matches former titlist Melio Bettina and Anton Christoforidis, the champion of all Europe.

The New York State Athletic commission still recognizes handsome Bill Conn as the crown-holder. However, the N. B. A. contends Conn's "retirement," pending a heavyweight match with Joe Louis next summer, has pushed the popular Pittsburgher off the throne.

The N. B. A. named Bettina, Christoforidis and Gus Lesnevich as the outstanding men in the division and told Lesnevich he could have a fight with Monday's victor within 60 days.

Scoutpaw Bettina, who hails from Beacon, N. Y., won the title from Tiger Jack Fox and lost it to Conn six months later.

Bettina Is Favorite

Christoforidis, carrying a thunderbolt left, has beaten Jimmy Bivins and other ranking scrappers in this country. But the Greek sheik will go into the Bettina bout on the short end of the odds, now quoted at 7 to 5, despite strong local support.

Bettina, weighing 175, will have an advantage of about eight pounds. Prices scale up to $5 and the fight is enjoying a heavy advance sale. Attorney-Promoter Bob Brickman estimated a crowd of 10,000 plus, with a $25,000 to $35,000 gate.

The heavyweight title bout here in 1931 between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling drew a disappointing 34,000.

Youngstown Sends One To Ohio Meet

(By Associated Press)

RAVENNA, Jan. 10.—Winners of the Ohio High School Athletic association sectional Class A tournaments in Akron, Youngstown and Euclid Shore will go directly to the state tournament in Columbus this year instead of participating in a district meet.

The district athletic board made this decision last night after representatives from Youngstown agreed to accept one place in the state finals. Euclid Shore also will send one and Akron three. Twenty teams will compete at the Youngstown sectional, 15 at Euclid Shore and 34 at Akron the week of March 8.

Two years ago Youngstown representatives, opposing holding both sectional and district meets at Akron, demanded two state final places. Because of the Youngstown attitude, the district meet was shifted to Kent last year.

When Akron opposed holding the Kent meet this year and Youngstown agreed to one place the board decided to abolish the district event. The Class B meet will be held as usual the week of March 15.

HOPPE CONCEDED BILLIARDS TITLE AFTER TAKING ILL

Champ Holds Big Lead Before Attack of Intestinal Flu

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Willie Hoppe is still the king of three cushion billiards, but the 53-year-old master is in no condition today to exult over his cue wizardry.

Hoppe had almost completed his conquest of Challenger Jake Schaefer of Cleveland last night when an attack of intestinal influenza laid him low, bringing the title match to an abrupt conclusion.

He was removed to his hotel (Palmer House) where a house physician described Hoppe as "a very sick man."

Hoppe's 480-point match with Schaefer was in the 22nd inning of the final block of 60 points last night when he whispered to Referee Charles McElligott that he could not proceed. At this point Schaefer was leading, 35 to 9, in the block, but Hoppe still had a cumulative margin of 429 to 380, for the entire contest which started Monday.

As soon as Hoppe was assisted from the tournament scene, Schaefer announced that he wanted no part of the title under such circumstances.

"Hoppe is still the champion," said Jake. "He is much too sick to play and he had a big lead. I wouldn't want the title under those conditions."

Not Even Close

BATESVILLE, Miss., Jan. 10.—Although Sardis' basketball team scored 44 points against the Batesville Independents, the game wasn't even close.

Final score: Sardis 44, Batesville 125.

This 92-acre farm is located on hard road about 1 1/2 miles from Beloit and 7 miles from Salem. Approximately 50 acres in cultivation and balance in pasture. Pasture has excellent supply of water available throughout the season. Farm has 8-room house with furnace heat, well water. Large bank barn with straw shed, 15 stanchions, well water. Silo on farm, also other necessary outside buildings.
In order to settle an estate, this farm is being offered at a remarkably low price for quick sale. Gas lease pays an income of $92 per year, which is enough to pay taxes and other incidental expenses. Here is an outstanding farm bargain for the man who wants productive land and suitable buildings at pasture land price alone. If interested, see us at once, for this farm will soon be in the hands of a new owner. Only $3,500!

BRINGING UP FATHER

Dobbin, At Least, Won't Strip Gear

Cavalry Makes Efforts To Prove Animals Are Still Needed

WASHINGTON—While the public centers its attention on the dramatic developments of mechanized warfare, the horse is waging a fight for continued recognition as one military unit which can strip no gears.

In the 1st Cavalry Division at Fort Bliss, Tex., officers and men are making daily efforts to prove there are conditions where only the cavalryman and his horse can reconnoiter and strike out effectively against an enemy. They are also working to make the cavalry unit more formidable than ever by equipping it with additional firing power and supporting it with mechanized units.

New Methods Adopted

Many old cavalry officers have forewarned the horse for the armored force. But not those at Fort Bliss. They are training new horses and new men in new methods. They argue that the tank is all right when conditions are favorable for its use. But, they say, a tank can bog down in marshland and a steep mountain trail baffles it. To this extent the armored force agrees.

The cavalry's argument is that no one knows where the United States will fight its next war. If it were along the Texas border in the Rockies, along the Canadian border or in Latin-America—in event of a violation of the Monroe Doctrine—the cavalry might soon become the army's most important unit.

The horse can travel where there are no gasoline tanks. Its fuel, in an emergency, comes from the countryside. The soldier riding the animal can carry enough rations for himself for days. A horse, led by a rider, can carry machine guns of varying calibers. Horses can draw a 75 howitzer through terrain which would stop a tractor.

Horses May Ride, Too

The mechanized forces under present plans, could be used to carry horse and rider to the spot of difficult access. From then on the horse can travel as much as 100 miles in a day.

The most interesting experiment being conducted at Fort Bliss in this connection is the development of the horse-portee in which eight horses and eight men were loaded into a truck for transportation to the field of action.

The cavalry prefers to get green men and green horses for its new training program. Horses already broken have too many habits to unlearn to become good cavalry mounts according to present requirements. Men familiar with horses have the same shortcomings and are liable to teach their mounts bad habits.

The quality of cavalry mounts according to the officers, has vastly improved since 1917. For since that time the army had adopted the practice of placing good sires on many farms in the horse country with the understanding that it shall have the first right to buy the offspring. The results are said already to be visible in a stock which lacks the temperament of the thoroughbred but has the heart of a cavalry horse.

Modern Warfare Whets Skill Of U. S. Army Artillerymen

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Modern warfare has posed a real problem for the field artillery. It must keep pace with the fast-moving forces to make its fire effective over the head of its own infantry.

The problem is being worked out at historic Fort Sill, Okla.—a post established during the Indian wars and where Geronimo was long held captive—where the far-flung ranges give an opportunity to test the mobility and firing power of the artillery. New lands are being acquired over which maneuvers may take place at high speeds around and over the adjacent hills.

While more and more emphasis is being placed on motorized equipment in connection with the solution of problems involving mechanized warfare, the artillery realizes that, as in the case of cavalry, there are some places where the horse works better than a tractor. For this reason, the all-around artilleryman has to be a horseman as well as a mechanic.

"Skill is better than luck," is the artillery school motto.

Extreme Range 12 Miles

This skill requires great coordination between infantry and artillery. With guns ranging in fire from a few hundred yards to 12 miles or more, the artillery not only has a problem in finding its target but is faced also with the danger of hitting its own infantry with a misplaced shot, especially in time of rapid advance.

To gain this range it has several adjuncts. One is the artillery liaison officer who moves with the foremost infantry troops. He coordinates the artillery fire with the requirements of the infantry commander. He relays his orders back by messenger, wigwag signal, telephone or radio.

The range is given by means of a photographic map wherever possible, since these maps bring out every detail of terrain and every landmark.

Other adjuncts include the observation plane, with which each artillery unit is equipped, the sound platoon and the flash platoon. Except for its vulnerability, the observation plane is perhaps the most reliable.

The sound platoon, as its name indicates, plots the time it takes for sound to travel to the microphone with which the platoon is equipped. Each missile makes three sounds in being fired, the sharp report of the gunfire, the whine of the projectile as it travels through the air and the dull thud of the detonation of high explosive when it reaches its mark. All three help locate the firing battery and the sound method works on days of low visibility and against hidden or camouflaged guns.

The flash platoon can function only where the flash of the gun and the shell explosion can be seen. It charts these from varying positions simultaneously and works up the position and accuracy of fire by taking the intersection of the observations. It requires, as do most activities of the artillery, fast-thinking mathematicians, but the flash platoon can usually estimate positions within a few yards.

The artillery seldom tries to make a direct hit. The explosion of a shell will throw fine bits of steel through the air and make life uncertain for as far as 150 yards. It demoralizes if it does not destroy the enemy in that vicinity and opens the way for the infantry. The most deadly addition to artillery fire since the World war is development of the instantaneous fuse which detonates the projectile on contact with the earth. In 1917-18 projectiles dug deep into the earth before exploding. This resulted in spraying fragments high into the air and doing serious damage only in a limited area. It was for this reason the armies often preferred gas shells which spread their lethal dose flat over the ground. The new sensitive fuses detonate quickly but they make firing somewhat more dangerous.

Down-South MEAT PIE

Down south or up north, it'll taste better and look better if you make it with PILLSBURY'S BEST FLOUR!

We wish you could see with your own eyes the hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat we reject—refuse to buy—every year, because it's not good enough for Pillsbury's Best Flour. You see, we test wheat by grinding and baking samples actually sent in from the fields during harvest. We wish you could see the difference in baking quality between the rejected wheats and the fine wheats we do buy for Pillsbury's Best. Then you'd understand for yourself why one flour can be so much better than another.

But we believe you'll see that difference in your own kitchen the first time you use Pillsbury's Best. Won't you try it, next time you bake?

VALUABLE FREE PREMIUMS—Save the THRIFT STARS which are packed in your bag of Pillsbury's Best Flour, and with other Pillsbury products. They are redeemable for electric clocks, women's fine silk hosiery, aluminum ware, silverware, and other valuable merchandise. For free booklet showing all the premiums, write Pillsbury Flour Mills Co., Dept. 65, Minneapolis, Minn.

DOWN-SOUTH MEAT PIE (Serves 8 to 10)

TEMPERATURE: 1 1/2 hr. for about 30 minutes, then 1 1/2 hr. for about 45 minutes

TIME: 1 1/2 hr. for about 45 minutes

2 lbs. cubed raw meat 3 tablespoons PILLSBURY'S BEST Flour

2 tablespoons fat 2 teaspoons salt

1/2 cup chopped green pepper 1/4 teaspoon pepper

1 cup chopped onions 1/4 teaspoon paprika

2 cups chopped celery 1/2 cup corn, drained

3 cups canned tomatoes 1/2 cup corn, drained

1. Sear meat in fat until browned; remove from fat. Add next three ingredients; cook until tender.

2. Add tomatoes gradually to flour and seasonings; add all vegetables and meat. Turn into 2 1/2-qt. casserole; cover; cook about 30 minutes in moderate oven. Top with the following:

CORN MEAL BISCUIT

1 1/4 cups milk, scalded

1/4 cup PILLSBURY'S CORN MEAL (Yellow or White)

2 cups sifted PILLSBURY'S BEST Flour

2 1/4 teaspoons Double Acting baking powder OR 1 1/4 teaspoons Single Acting baking powder

1. Pour hot milk over corn meal; cool completely.

2. Sift flour once, measure; add baking powder and salt; sift together twice.

3. Cut in shortening until quite fine.

4. Add corn meal; stir only until all flour is dampened.

5. Drop by spoonfuls over mixture. Bake in hot oven.

NOTE: This recipe may also be made with 4 cups left-over cooked meat.
